AN ALPINE SYMPHONY IN IMAGES

Listen with your eyes! — Tobias Melle

Richard Strauss once boasted that he could depict even a knife and fork in music, so when he paints the full majesty of the Alps, the results are truly spectacular! First, the “ravishing” Alena Baeva plays the lushious Violin Concerto by Korngold – the Viennese genius who made it big in Hollywood. And then Lio Kuokman takes a supersized HK Phil on an audio-visual mountain journey: waterfalls, glaciers and breathtaking views, all without leaving your seat!

LIO KUOKMAN

Conductor

An Alpine Symphony

Concert performed using a specially designed sound system, including:

- 12 off-stage hunting horns
- Thunder and wind machines
- An organ
- A Heckelphone (a lower-pitched oboe, first made in 1904)

R. STRAUSS

An Alpine Symphony

Strauss loved alpine landscapes. In 1883, his first opera, “An Alpine Symphony”, was performed. This new version, performed with the HK Phil, includes special effects, such as wind machines and organ pedals. The concert is directed by Lio Kuokman, a conductor known for his innovative approach to music.
